- * What is the Owner's role in Safety?
- * What is their Project Manager's role in Safety?
- * What is the role of their Consultants in Safety?
- * What Safety challenges is the construction industry facing?
- * What are the aspects of a world-class Safety program?
- * What is the Impact of Safety practices on success of a project, project schedule and project budget?
- * How do Owners Implement new Safety management practices into projects?

This program addresses these and other Owners' questions about Safety. A case study will provide the initial framework for answering questions about the Owner's role in, and approach to, Safety, and serve as an example for addressing Safety in a large capital building program.

The Case Study: A Multi-year, Multi-Billion-Dollar, Capital Building Program in southern California - one of the largest construction markets in the US. The Owner used a forward-thinking approach to engaging in contractor safety initiatives and requirements to advance their builder program, ensure their fiduciary responsibility to taxpayers, and create a culture of caring for contractor workers and their families.

As a result, the Owner realized these and other benefits:

- $83M in savings over 10 years of construction activity
- Zero Claims over deductible
- Value & Qualifications Based Contracting Mechanisms
- Greater Capital Efficiency
- Understanding that "Lives Depend on Owners"

We will address issues in new construction, as well as renovation, modernization, and retrofit, including occupancy during construction.

We also plan to include a Lessons Learned Panel in the program.

Presenter:
Ed Aschoff

CannonDesign

Ed is an experienced C-Level AEC leader with mega project, and program management expertise, including Fortune 500 experience in Preconstruction, Quality, Risk, HR and Safety. He has a proven track record of innovation during execution of $25B in construction value in buildings, infrastructure and industrial, while increasing capital efficiency for public and private entities.

Ed provided executive-level consulting services for ten years on Los Angeles Community College sustainable building program and was instrumental in multi-million-dollar, cost-of-risk savings for the District. His efficient, results-oriented approach on several other multi-year public capital building programs resulted in single-digit loss ratios.
